of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration as a cover for U.S. espionage flights over the Soviet Union was studied today by a Senate committee.

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee summoned Dr. Hugh L. Dryden, NASA's deputy administrator, as it continued its inquiry into the U2 spy plane incident a month ago.

Dryden faced questioning about two statements concerning the "weather mission" it issued after the U2 had been brought down over the Soviet Union two weeks before the collapse of the Paris summit meeting.

His testimony, like that of Secretary of State Christian A. Herter last Friday, was to be made available to newsmen as fast as the transcript can be censored. Allen W. Dulles, director of the Central Intelligence Agency, refused to tell the committee Tuesday the nature of the information the U2 sought on that flight. Sen. Albert Gore (D - Tenn) pressed Dulles to say what was so important about the mission as to justify it so close to the summit meeting.

Chairman J. William Fulbright (D - Ark), reporting that, said Dulles replied he preferred not to comment on the question.

That was just about all Fulbright would say about Dulles' testimony, which the latter refused to release for publication

AFTER TESTIFYING. Allen Dulles, director of Central Intelligence Agency, is all smiles as he leaves Senate Office Building Tuesday after testifying for almost three hours behind closed doors, before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee's inquiry into events leading up to the summit collapse. "The Best Place To Buy After All"

No Reason To Doubt Malinovsky

The grim-faced militarist who went to Paris to help Khrushchev blow up the Summit Conference has warned that rocket retaliation awaits nations in which unfriendly United States airplane flights originate.

There is no reason to doubt Rodion Malinovsky, defense minister of the Soviet Union. President Eisenhower declared that he called off reconnaissance flights over Russian territory immediately after the Powers mishap, because of the danger to countries with U.S.

Here, laid down in its awful proportions, is the ultimate horror of pushbutton war-

Batteries of Russian missiles aimed at distant targets in foreign countries and ready to fire at an instant's notice. . . A foreign plane reported over Russian territory. . . Word is flashed to defense headquarters.

A too-hasty decision causes a missile to be launched. It lands in Afghanistan, doing terrible damage with its nuclear warhead. Consistent with Malinovsky's credo that "war cannot be warded off with cowardice," the United States promptly dispatches its Strategic Air Command bombers on their mission of massive retaliation. In a matter of hours, World War III has been so well begun and so systematically rushed to fulfillment that there is no backing out of it.

Only the historians, if there are any survivors to care what happened, would know that the foreign plane reported over Russian territory was identified later as an experimental type being developed by the Russian air force

For many years, the most hateful fact of life to Russian militarists has been the ring of U.S. bases that pen them in. They choose to describe the bases as proof of aggressive intent, though they know it is impossible for aggression to originate here.

Their overriding purpose is to get rid of the U.S. bases. Nothing that ever came to hand before gave them so much leverage as the U2 incident, which they call an act of aggression. With it to pry with, they may break the security chain that has hemmed them in.

If the price of cooperation with the non-Communist world is the possibility of instant nuclear attack by the rocket-rattling Communist militarists, the price will seem too high to wavering nations.

This has been increasingly the problem of non-Communist security measures - that wavering nations feared being caught in a military collision between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Defense Minister Malinovsky has spelled out how accidental and incidental a collision might be. A single airplane flying off course -or even an airplane that never existedmight twitch the Red Army's trigger finger.

The price of air bases and all other security now will go up, in some instances

Don't Forget That Mess In March

A word of gratitude must go to the Ohio Association of Municipal Court Clerks for giving us an "off-season" reminder that something needs to be done about the automobile license plate problem.

One of the reasons this widely criticized sanity-tester remains unsolved is that Ohioans get their dander up about it only one month each year. After the mad rush is over tempers cool down and the magnitude of the problem is forgotten until the following March 1

The court clerks' specific complaint is that drivers do not have permanent license numbers, which means additional work and operating expense in trying to track down the changing numbers of traffic violators.

IT IS A VALID complaint, but only one of many that could be leveled against the archaic system still in force in Ohio.

Permanent license plates would give the court clerks the permanent-number system they desire, and also free hundreds of thousands of car owners from the burden of making a complete changeover every spring.

This would mean no more fighting with crowds of other frantic drivers to beat the deadline, no more fighting with holder bolts corroded by the winter's highway salt, no more fighting with deputy registrars over presentation of proper papers properly signed, no more fighting for the annual right to sell

IT COULD MEAN a savings to the taxpayers in manufacturing and administrative costs, reflected either in a reduction of fees or an increase in the amount of funds returned to local governments for streets and

And while the Legislature is at it, perhaps it could find a way to distribute on a rotating basis the little date plates necessary in a permanent-plate s y s t e m, instead of having them all expire at one time.

Not to be overlooked is the advantage of a permanent color for Ohio license plates some nice, neutral combination that go with any of today's rainbow-hued automobiles and not interfere with an owner's desire to switch from one color scheme to another radically

We could go on, but enough has been said. The court clerks have reminded us the problem needs solving.

We pass the reminder along to all the candidates for election to next year's General Assembly session.

recent years of Boris Pasternak's life to poster the Kremlin within an inch of a shooting spree. But one moral in particular must make the absolutists who tell Russians what to think turn livid.

One man scribbling words with no official sanction - words that told about human beings who were not happy under Russian-style absolutism - could upset them more than an exchange of diplomatic notes rumbling threats of international violence.

"Dr. Zhivago," Pasternak's controversial novel that became compulsory reading for many after he was given the Nobel Prize in 1958 for this contribution to literature, was not the clearest book ever written. It certainly was no hammer blow at the thoughtcontrol of the Rommunist credo. But it voiced a murmur of dissent to powerful men in the Kremlin who tell Russians what to think. what to read and what to say. It was a contrary opinion, the one thing that cannot be tolerated by human beings who tell other human beings what it is proper for them to

'Honest John'

For 18 years, John Hall was a haunted man -haunted by a 60-cent lunch check.

But Mr. Hall, a Watertown, N.Y., cab fleet owner, finally has a clear conscience. He has paid his debt and provided an amusing story for gloom-weary readers.

During the war days as John Hall, with a bunch of Army buddies, walked out of a Boston lunchroom, he told the girl, "Send me the check overseas."

Last week, while attending a cab convention, he walked "mile after mile," still haunted by that check, until he found the restaurant where he had eaten 18 years ago.

He went in and handed the manager a The restaurant has mounted the dollar on a souvenir card reading: "Appreciation to 'Honest John Hall' " and is sending the card and dollar back to him with the words; "May this honest dollar bring ye good luck as long as ye shall live."

Whether or not there is a moral, what way is there to get more value for one dollar?

Several states are conducting crackdowns on SLOW DRIVERS! ("Pull over to the curb, brother; you're making it tough for drunks and cowboys!") This can make it embarrassing for the autoist who has just read fed eral, state or city "Drive Safe" pleas an is taking it seriously o prove him dangerous.

"Lemme see your license," we imagine a cop ordering.

"You're interfering with widespread highway carelessness. It's guys like you who darken the life of hell-for-leather killers. What do you mean driving sensibly?"

"I'm in no hurry to get into trouble," says the autoist.

"A revolutionist!" exclaims the cop. "How fast were you going?" "I was down to 45 per hour," says the man. "I clocked you at 38 and it's criminal negligence.'

"It's my first offense. Let me go and I promise to drive as fast as everybody else." "Okay," says the cop, "but if I catch you behaving normally on highway again it'll mean your license.' Most states are cracking down on highway killers, with New York passing a special law to get driver who drives when only half pixilated. The old law, which requires high alcoholic content and provides a hoosegow sentence, remains but the new one yanks the license from a drinker with a low load. This stops liberation of alcoholized operator on the old "You're not DRUNK ENOUGH to be a menace" routine. All over the country the autoist not stewed enough to greet a single motorcycle cop with 'What do you THREE guys want?" has been getting away with murder. It's been easy, especially easy if his lawyer could be convincing with argument, "Yerroner, at time of arrest my client's tongue was not thick enough

BOB MOSES has been formally elected head of N.Y. World Fair and given custody of Newbold Morris. He says the fair will be between two and three times bigger than the last exposition, if it takes his last colorful adjective. Moses will get $100,000 per year and the city will save money on the deal, since he will supply all the fireworks.

A brokerage house clerk got a jail sentence for stealing $184,000 in postage stamps. Lawyer could have won freedom for him with claim the man mistook them for circus ads and kidney plasters.

Folks who think big money didn't come until late '40s were surprised when Paul Whiteman in a TV interview said he frequently got $10,000 tips for concerts for the rich. Paul said that George Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue," first played by Whiteman's orchestra, was written in less than two weeks. He had given out a news story that Gershwin would write a number for the concert. Gershwin didn't know about it until he read the papers. He resented it at first, but buckled down and knocked off one of the best known musical compositions of modern times in a hurry.

CINCINNATI It's just not true that no man is an island, entire of himself. There's that rugged 38-year-old Jim Luken, the only Teamster leader left in the broad land who still tells Jimmy Hoffa go jump the Potomac - or the Ohio River here if Hoffa has any preference. This is the sentiment this Queen Victor Riesel City where the Teamsters national machine has not yet ground down

I do not insinuate that Jim Luken's island of sheer courage isn't inhabited by colleagues who have just as much guts. They're still in this fight despite midnight telephone harassments, attempted frame-ups, terror and a constant war of nerves. They have gotten a real taste of the Teamsters machine democracy into which the House of Represent atives Judiciary Committee might look before it closes its hearings on the bill to get the federal courts and the Monitors off Hoffa's back.

Hoffa's congressional bloc has as its floor whip a gentleman from the Chicago wards, Rep. Roland Libonati. He has been talking "inside the House" about the unfairness of the Monitors to big Brother Hoffa and of returning "democracy to the Teamsters."

WHAT ABOUT starting in Cincinnati? Here Jim Luken heads the city Joint Council of Teamsters.

Here they've taken control of the council and the biggest unit, Local 100, from Hoffa men - including one who had a long criminal record topped by a recent term in the Ohio State Penitentiary.

It took a series of elections and court actions to oust hitherto untouchables. Would Rep. Libonati and his congressional bloc like to know about the moment during this campaign when a local funeral parlor was called and told Luken was dead and the undertaker telephoned Luken's surprised family to learn where he could pick up the body?

Would Rep. Libonati like to ask AFL-CIO President George Meany what he meant when he said not long ago, that "in one large city (Cincinnati), there's been a fight on for the last year and a half between the officers at the head of the Teamsters in that city and the forces of Hoffa with all his goons and every possible dollar he could

'These thousands of members, 10,000 roughly in three or four local unions, have gone through elections and they have beaten Hoffa every step of the way.

"I will tell you why we don't charter then and why they haven't applied for a charter (in the AFL-CIO). Two thousand make their living over-the-road. They leave that city and go 50 and 100 miles away every day of their working lives.

Those 2,000 . . . would be sacrificed. It would not be possible for them to go (drive) to another city in complete control of the Hoffa forces and deliver their goods. So they would have to be sacrificed."

WOULD CONGRESSMAN Libonati like to know the details of the hiring of a prostitute to frame one of Jim Luken's associates? Testifying before the McClellan committee, Luken revealed that the worst of the harassments came when one of his colleagues in the crusade was charged with rape in court.

'Later the woman who made the accusation admitted to us that she was paid $195 to do so and was promised $1,000 if he was indicted. She said she was paid by the Luken isn't bitter. He knows the odds are against them. Why?

'Well, it's more than the terror and harassment," he philosophized. "I'm 38. If they push me out I can always get another job. I'm a milk wagon driver. But most of the other Teamsters officials elsewhere are up in their fifties. They're earning their 10 grand a year. If they get squeezed out because they buck the machine, what will they do - go back to driving a truck at that age? So they go along. They don't like it. But they go."

Since Socrates isn't around to discuss democracy with Congressman Libonati, perhaps the Judiciary subcommittee would like to discuss the concept with Jim Luken. Or doesn't anybody care?

Summit, Presidential Trips

By James Marlow

WASHINGTON The year 1960 may turn out to be the one which put a damper on summit meetings and presidential trips abroad and at the same time hadly damaged American prestige. President Eisenhower on trip to Japan in June, runs into a riot of anti-American protest it will do neither him nor this country any good. It will make any future president reluctant about a foreign journey.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon, who ran into anti-American riots on his South American tour in 1958, indicated Tuesday that in the future summit meetings for American presidents will be a last resort

This country's military bases in Japan-a key to defenses in the Pacific-were established under a 1951 agreement which many Japanese have resented.

So a new agreement was worked out to give Japan a position of equality with this country in Asian defense. But this, too, ran into a storm from Japanese Communists, Socialists and neu-

They rioted in protest. They also rioted against Eisenhower's proposed trip to Japan. But the pro-Western Japanese Premier, Nobusuki Kishi, approved the military agreement. And Eisenhower Tuesday made it definite he will visit Japan.

The new defense agreement with Japan goes into effect June 19. just about the time Eisenhower arrives there. Kishi probably has assured Eisenhower his government will preserve order when he arrives.

It may not be able to. If, in an attempt to prevent any disturbance, the Japanese police get overly tough with demonstrators. Eisenhower could be walking into the most unpleasant experience of his life.

He seems to enjoy these trips abroad. But just what tangible benefits this country gets from such journeys is not clear at all. Each one of them has potential danger summit conferences, favoring instead the older kind of diplomacy in which foreign ministers made the deals and agreements, but only, of course, with the approval of the head man at home.

This always provided the head of state with an out if the foreign ministers' conferences failed or there was some other snafu.

He himself, by staying home, was safe from personal and public ridicule such as Premier Nikita Khrushchev dumped on Eisenhower at Paris. But when he went to the summit in Paris the blowup there finished any chance that Eisenhower would go to another such meeting before he leaves office next Jan. 20. Nixon, who has hopes of taking Eisenhower's place as the new president, seemed to show reaction inside the Eisenhower administration against future summit meetings.

Nixon said: "While we do not rule out any meeting which might contribute to the cause of peace, certainly the world will now have greater confidence in the traditional method of diplomacy and in discussions in the United Nations than in the summitry on which Mr. Khrushchev has in the past insisted

Until Khrushchev battered him -and the American government lied about the U2 spy plane downed over the Soviet Union-Eisenhower had a world prestige unmatched by any present head of state.

Politicians are watching closely

What interested the voter in November 1940 was that the nation was in the midst of a crisis and the electorate felt it was too dangerous "to swap horses in midstream.

Something of the same atmosphere was created in October 1956 when the Suez crisis developed.

It didn't matter much what the opposing politicians said about 'bungling' foreign policy in the Middle East or the failure of Secretary Dulles to placate Nasser and similar criticisms of a captious character.

What mattered was that Britain and France had sent troops to Egypt and the United States was trying to ease the situation by mediation.

Democrats admit now that this crisis helped President Eisenhower win re-election, as lots of voters switched to him in the closing days of the campaign.

When the peace issue - or war issue - is analyzed historically, it will be found that what matters most are the conditions that prevail in the autumn of an election year and not necessarily those that have gotten headlines in May.

BASICALLY the American people want peace but not "peace at any price.

The veterans of past wars may not want to see another conflict but they are not the kind of men who believe in surrender and defeat.

Now, it is often argued in political circles that the women do want peace at any price. Recently when the summit meeting collapsed and a sort of fright seized the country that war might be imminent, here and there comments were heard that women voters would really accept Communist rule in preference to destruction by nuclear weapons.

The Soviets, of course, have built their whole strategy on scare and bluff and would like to conquer the world without firing a shot.

This, however, is the oldest form of blackmail the world has ever known. Brave men and women have stood up to it before and have sacrificed themselves rather than accept live in bondage

The British people had their choice of slavery under Hitlerian rule or standing up to the Nazi assault and they gave the whole world an example of the inherent character of free people who cherish their liberty.

But the issue in politics never is drawn sharply between one party that allegedly favors surrender and the other that supposedly wants war.

THE REAL ISSUE is whether, in the midst of crisis, there shall be a change and whether such change, which involves a turnover of high officials and confusion in governmental administration, isn't a risky

The American people don't like war and will not support an administration that is truly bellicose. Once war threatens, however, they support the party in power. An administration that seeks to maintain peace with honor is likely to get support so long as it pursues a cautious policy of restraint and doesn't weaken its defenses.

Lisbon Given Sewer

Easement Over Land

LASBON - A Common Pleas

Court Jury Tuesday awarded $10 to the "unknown heirs" of Harriett Hitabiddle after the village of Lisbon had petitioned for an easement over the property for sewer purposes in the Grandview addition, between High and Pine Sts.

The Board of Public Affairs requested the right-of-way, but could not locate any heirs. The needed area includes Smith Addition, owned by Irene and George E. Mc-

Baltimore 'Youngsters' Steaming Up League

Nail Yankees 3-2; Up Lead Over Indians

Associated Press Sports Writer You can call 'em the Baby Birds or the Kiddie Korps, but what those Baltimore Oriole pitchers are doing to rest of the American League these days is spelled m-u-r-d-e-r.

The five kid hurlers-Steve Barber, Chuck Estrada, Jack Fisher, Milt Pappas and Jerry Walkerall barely old enough to vote, have packed away 16 of the front-flying Birds' 25 victories.

Walker, the last to become a winner, nailed his first decision with a 3-2 victory over the New York Yankees Tuesday night. The 21-year-old right-hander had a nohitter for six innings, then gave way for ninth-inning relief by Barber, also 21.

It was the fifth victory in six games for the Orioles and it gave them a two-game edge over Cleveland. Chicago's defending champion White Sox shook their slump and beat the second-place Indians 6-4.

Kansas City spilled Detroit 2-1 behind the three-hit pitching of Dick Hall. Boston escaped the cellar while plunking Washington in, defeating the Senators 5-1.

The Orioles beat left-hander Whitey Ford (2-3) for the first time in four decisions going back to last September. The clinching run came off reliever Ryne Duren, however, in the eighth inning on three walks and a sacrific fly by Clint Courtney. Duren, nov has given up a dozen walks and 10 runs in his last five appear ances, covering just four innings

The White Sox broke their los ing string at four and reclaime third place from New York, 3 games behind Baltimore. A two run homer by Gene Freese tied 2-all in the fourth off loser Gar Bell (5-3) and Al Smith's sol homer triggered a winning, three run sixth. Billy Pierce (4-2) wa the winner, with 2 1-3 innings shutout relief by Russ Kemme er. The dog was picked up by Croyle on Shadyside Ave. He also has a small black and brown hound picked up on Globe St. in East End Tuesday.

Anyone interested in giving the animals a home may contact Croyle through the police department. He said he will be at the dog pound behind Westgate School until noon for the next five days

Industry Eight Grade Graduation Planned

Graduation exercises for 94 in graders of the Western Bea ver County School District will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. at the Ray W. Snyder School in Industry

The Rev. James Servey, pastor of the Ohio View Lutheran Church, will be speaker. James P McClaskey, president of the Board of Education, will present diplomas. There will be choir selections under the direction of Leo Curto, vocal music teacher.

Some 500 attended an "open house" held Tuesday evening at the new Snyder school, Frank said. A formal dedication of the new building will be held later this month on a date to be announced.

PARIS (AP)-President Charles de Gaulle said Tuesday night there should be no more summit conferences until the way to agreement is paved by "methodic diplomatic work.

After reasonable preparation by all four powers, De Gaulle said in a TV-radio report to the French nation, France would be ready to play host again to a top level meeting.

De Gaulle was the last of the Big Four leaders to report on the breakdown of the summit parley here two weeks ago.

Cattle Day Planned

LISBON - Several area beef cattle producers are expected to attend the Beef Cattle Day Thursday, June 9, at the Northwestern Substation in Wood County, sponsored by the Agriculture Experiment Station at Wooster, according to Don Myers, county extension agent in agriculture. Production testing, ultra-sonic testing of muscle and fat thickness on live animals and handling high moisture corn for silage will be topics.
